- Objective:
1. To enhance students' understanding beyond what their regular instructors cover.
 2. To provide expertise on a subject relevant to the organization or industry, offering fresh perspectives or solutions to challenges.
 3. The goal is usually to educate, inspire, or provoke thought among the audience.

Resource person's Credentials

Mr. Mishra shared some insights and advised the final year students as they embark on their academic journey, especially for those specializing in mathematics, statistics, and computer science. He emphasized the significance of the chosen fields. Mathematics forms the backbone of logical reasoning, providing a solid foundation for problem-solving. Statistics, on the other hand, is the language of uncertainty—essential for drawing meaningful conclusions from data. And, of course, computer science is the driving force behind technological advancements, shaping the world we live in today.

Now, as representatives of T Hub, he explained the growing synergy between these disciplines, particularly in the realm of data science. The ability to blend mathematical rigor with statistical methods and computational skills is becoming increasingly valuable in the professional landscape.

As you approach the final year, consider delving into practical applications of your knowledge. Internships, projects, and collaborative endeavors can provide hands-on experience, bridging the gap between theory and real-world scenarios. T Hub, for instance, offers opportunities for interdisciplinary projects that involve mathematical modeling, statistical analysis, and innovative use of computer science techniques.

Moreover, the field of data science is evolving rapidly. Stay abreast of the latest tools and technologies. Proficiency in programming languages like Python, R, and familiarity with machine learning frameworks will undoubtedly enhance your competitiveness in the job market.

Networking is another key aspect. Attend industry events, connect with professionals, and consider mentorship programs. T Hub organizes workshops and networking sessions, creating a bridge between academia and industry. These interactions can offer valuable insights, career guidance, and potential opportunities.

The speaker concluded by saying that skills you've honed in mathematics, statistics, and computer science embrace the interdisciplinary nature of your expertise, stay curious, and be proactive in seeking out opportunities. T Hub is here as a resource and support system for your endeavors.

Outcome:

Increased Knowledge: Audience members gained new insights, information, or perspectives on the topic being discussed.

Inspiration: The lecturer's expertise and passion inspired audience members to explore the topic further, pursue related careers, or take action in their own lives or work.

Networking Opportunities: The Guest lecturer provided opportunities for students to connect with them personally, fostering potential mentorship, collaboration, or future professional relationships.

Introduction:

The B.Com. Information Systems department recognizes the importance of bridging the gap between academics and the professional world. This guest lecture served as a valuable platform for students to gain practical knowledge and career development strategies. The session addressed the evolving job market, particularly the impact of AI on Accounting, Management, and other related fields, empowering students to navigate their career paths with a well-rounded understanding of industry trends.

The program commenced with an energetic greeting by the emcees, Raymond Paul and Kruthi Kura. They provided a brief overview of the department's mission and its commitment to preparing future business leaders. Students Nikitha Singh and Saakshi Goenka then introduced the esteemed guests, Mr. Ibrahim and Mr. Tanishq, highlighting their impressive academic and professional backgrounds. Following the introductions, Mr. Raj kumar Reddy Parvathagari, HOD of B.Com. Information Systems, and Mrs. Aparna K., a department faculty member, presented tokens of appreciation to Mr. Ibrahim followed by Dr. Repalle, a departmental faculty of the department of B.Com. These tokens, consisting of a shawl and a memento, signified the department's gratitude for their participation and willingness to share their expertise.

Mr. Ibrahim then took the stage, delivering the opening lecture titled "A Reality Check: Entering the Corporate World." His talk focused on providing practical insights into the competitive job market. He emphasized the importance of internships, hands-on experience, and a strong work ethic. He offered valuable insights into corporate culture and the importance of understanding organizational hierarchy. Mr. Ibrahim stressed that college placements can be a springboard for successful careers, encouraging students to actively participate and showcase their skills.

The session continued with Mr. Tanishq's presentation, "The Future of Banking and Finance: Embracing AI." He focused on the Banking and Finance industry, specifically addressing the increasing role of AI in automating tasks. Mr. Tanishq reassured students that AI adoption wouldn't completely eliminate jobs due to privacy concerns and implementation challenges. He encouraged students to embrace AI and related technologies like Prompt Engineering and Microsoft Copilot to stay competitive in the evolving job market.

Building upon the presentations, the session transitioned into an interactive format. A questionnaire activity allowed students to test their understanding of the presented topics. This was followed by a mock group discussion, facilitating one-on-one interaction between students and the lecturers. This interactive format provided valuable opportunities for students to clarify doubts, ask specific questions, and gain personalized insights from the experienced speaker.
